DIGITAL DENTISTRY

Scott Chennells was looking to move into the dental trade and in 2013 worked as a Vita product demonstrator. During this time Scott worked closely with Cerec dentists and became familiar with CAD/CAM dentistry.

Scott says "I joined Sirona because I was inspired by Sirona's approach to innovation. To be part of the digital dentistry movement and also to join a company which has been there from the start has been a fantastic leap. Sirona's passion for innovation radiates through its employees and this is why I joined the team and get involved with the future of dentistry."

HANDS-ON TRAINING

Practices can enrol on a dedicated one-day course specifically designed to educate the dental team about aspects of infection prevention in dental practices.

This City & Guilds accredited course blends theoretical teaching with hands-on practical learning. The course also qualifies for 5.5 hours of verifiable core CPD in infection control for those registered with the GDC.

This course takes care of a practice's decontamination training in a single day, equipping delegates with the knowledge and skills to return to their practice.

The course dates for 2015 are January 8, February 5, March 5 and April 9.

GOLDEN YEAR

Tepe is a family-owned company, run by the third generation and will be celebrating its 50th anniversary in 2015.

Early days saw woodcarver Henning Eklund develop a triangular wooden dental stick in collaboration with the professors of the School of Dentistry in Malmö. Henning's son Bertil started the manufacture of toothbrushes in the 1970's followed by, in the early 1990's, the innovative interdental brush which quickly became Tepe's leading product. The X-Soft IDB followed in the mid 2000's to expand the family range, catering for gingival trauma and personal preference and the Angle, a long-handled IDB a few years later.
